Hogan Personality Inventory (HPI)

Report For: Sam Poole

ID: HH802831

Date: 9.03.2021

Introduction

The Hogan Personality Inventory is a measure of normal personality that contains seven primary scales and six occupational scales used to describe Sam Poole's performance in the workplace, including how they manage stress, interact with others, approach work tasks, and solve problems. Although this report presents scores on a scale-by-scale basis, every scale contributes to Sam Poole's performance. This report notes strengths as well as areas for improvement and provides discussion points for developmental feedback.

- When examining HPI scale scores, it is important to remember that high scores are not necessarily better, and low scores are not necessarily worse. Every scale score reflects distinct strengths and shortcomings.
- HPI scores should be interpreted in the context of the person's occupational role to determine whether these characteristics are strengths or areas for potential development.
- The HPI is based upon the well-accepted Five Factor Model of personality.

Scale Definitions

▶ HPI Scale Name	▶ Low scores tend to be	▶ High scores tend to be
Adjustment	open to feedback candid and honest moody and self-critical	calm steady under pressure resistant to feedback
Ambition	good team players willing to let others lead complacent	energetic competitive restless and forceful
Sociability	good at working alone quiet socially reactive	outgoing talkative attention-seeking
Interpersonal Sensitivity	direct and frank willing to confront others cold and tough	friendly warm conflict averse
Prudence	flexible open-minded impulsive	organized dependable inflexible
Inquisitive	practical not easily bored uninventive	imaginative quick-witted poor implementers
Learning Approach	hands-on learners focused on their interests technology-averse	interested in learning insightful intolerant of the less informed

Executive Summary

Based on Sam Poole's responses to the HPI, on a day-to-day basis, they seem:

- Unfazed by external pressure and rarely, if ever, stressed. Others may sometimes perceive their resilience as arrogance because little seems to bother them and because they may tend to ignore feedback.
- Assertive, competitive, and task-oriented. They will seek opportunities to lead and take initiative and may be frustrated if opportunities are not available.
- Outgoing, gregarious, and approachable. They enjoy being the center of attention and will start conversations and network well, but they may also talk too much and not listen well.
- Pleasant, cooperative, tactful, and friendly. They should be good at relationship management but tend to avoid confrontations or conflict.
- Responsible, detail-oriented, and amenable to close supervision. They can be somewhat inflexible but otherwise demonstrates good organizational citizenship.
- Curious, innovative, creative, tolerant, and open-minded. They may also seem impractical and easily bored.
- Knowledgeable, up to date, and interested in learning. They should do well in structured learning or training environments and may find it hard to understand people who have no interest in formal learning.

Percentile Scores

The percentile scores indicate the proportion of the population who will score at or below Sam Poole. For example, a score of 75 on a given scale indicates that Sam Poole's score is higher than approximately 75% of the population.
